Settle ! Settle ! Settle ! STAUNTON, February 16, 1878.

Dear Dispaich: Persevere in your petriotic endeavor to force upon our Legislature a sense of the importance of settling the debt question at once. People who differ widely as to the mode of settlement all endorse you in this, except of a few who wish it to remain open as a source upor which to draw for funds to run the next campaign.

Placed in a situation that enables me to confer with men from all portions of our county and Valley, I know I express the general sentiment when I say that what the people want is a settlement now. Even those who are as wide apart in their individual views upon this absorbing topic "as pole and line" infinitely prefer some adjustment between the conflicting elements in our General Assembly, which, made in a spirit of mutual accommodation and compromise, will put the question at rest to a blind, senseless, bigoted maintenance of a partisan warfare that will eventually result in "nothing being done," and disastrously to the best interests of both State and credi-

Cannot our representatives who talk so glibly about the "sovereignty of the peo-ple" accord to the wishes of the people that respect to which their position, as the party ultimately and most vitally to be af-fected, entitles them? They call upon them now to cast aside the baleful spirit of partisanship, personal ambition, petty jealousles and animosities, and, meeting together like common sons of a common mother, in a epirit of generous toleration, to devise some method by which their differences may be adjusted, and the festering sore on our body politic be healed and new life infused into our paralyzed energies. If they do this they will have nothing to fear at the hands of the people; but wee unto those who disregard this call !

"That so, when the rotten hustings shake. In another year to his brazen lies A wretched vote may be gained." For if this question is left open until another general election, and this feverish excitement allowed to centinue, the "rotten hustings," that barely supported them last fall, will give way beneath them, and they, like the "bat" described by Peter Carter, be remitted to political "darkness," where there "will be wailing and gnashing of teeth"; demagogism "weeping for her children because they are not"! Many will retire, crying. "Populus me sibilat," who now account themselves as the mouth-pieces of "the great vox populi," but who are really "vox et præterea nihil"! J. M.

FARMVILLE, PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY, VA., February 12, 1878. Editors Richmond Dispatch:

Dear Sirs,-I am gratified to learn that General Joseph E. Johnston, in response to a petition signed by leading citizens of Richmond, has consented to let his name appear before a nominating convention as a candidate for Congress. As a Confederate soldier during the war it was my fortune to follow him in all of his campaigns in the Army of the Tennessee. and I can safely assert that no man stood higher in the estimation of both officers and men than did this gallant chieftain. I shall never forget the tears of regret when (for reasons unknown to but few at that time he was supplanted by General Hood, and how the remnants of his shattered brigades and war-worn veterans hailed with delight his presence when he was reinstated to his command, ju-t previous to one or two of the last battles of the war. I remember.

LOST, ON SATURDAY MORNING the last instant, a GOLD LOCKET with a pearlinest in set in centre. A suitable reward will be paid if fe last battles of the war. I remember. the last battles of the war. I remember, during the armistice in North Carolina, and pending the decision of the Federal authorities in regard to the terms of the surrender, that, near Greensboro'. I conversed with General Breckinridge (formerly my old brigade commander) on the subject of the terms that were first made by Generals Johnston and Sherman, and he re-marked that "whilst they (the terms of capitulation) were worthy of a statesman and patriot, yet he had no idea that the Federals would agree to them." Generals Lee, and Jackson, and Albert Sidney Johnston, and Bragg, and Stewart, and Forrest, and Semmes, his lamented peers, have all passed away; and I feel that it is but a just tribute of respect to his inflexible integrity, his purity of life, and his undauntless courage, that his district should nominate him by acclamation. The fortunes of the war have disfranchised me, and I have no voice nor vote now; but if my feeble pen can be of any service to him it will be freely and cheerfully given. Yours truly, R. R. S.

. A Lockport paper mentions that a large school-building, the largest hall in town, with other rooms in the same building, and forty large dwellings, are all heated by steam made in a single boiler five feet by sixteen in size; and, in addition, two steamengines, one of them more than half a mile from the boiler-house, are run by steam from the same boiler. About three miles of street-mains have been laid, extending through fifteen streets, and furnished with steam at a pressure of thirty pounds to the square inch. The Worcester Spy, from which we have derived this information, says that the total space warmed by mation, says that the total space warmed by this single boiler is more than 1,600,000 cubic feet. The originator of this system claims that he has proved that a district of four square miles can be economically warmed from one central point. The company lay the pipes in the streets, like the gas company and callect from their customers the pany, and collect from their customers the

The price is not mentioned, but if in its pecuniary aspect the experiment should prove to be as attractive as in other respects, the dust and smoke and soot and general uncomfortableness of our present heating methods will soon give place to something more in accordance with the growth of the age and the wants of our civilization.
